Have you heard of this?

Hornucopian dronepipe

The hornucopian dronepipe is an entirely 3D-printed instrument designed by MONAD Studio, Eric Goldemberg and Veronica Zalcborg with musician/luthier Scott F. Hall. It's just one of a set of rather dystopian-looking instruments which together form an art installation. The other instruments are: two-string piezoelectric violin, one-string electric travel bass guitar, one-string piezoelectric monovioloncello and a small didgeridoo.
